THE PUBLIC'S OPTION

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. MALONEY) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mrs. MALONEY. Mr. Speaker, the American Medical Association has given a ringing endorsement of H.R. 3200, America's Affordable Health Choices Act. This legislation contains a strong public insurance option which would guarantee that quality, affordable health care is available to all Americans.

The AMA has not always been on board with health care reform. Many of us remember their opposition to President Clinton's efforts. Yet the AMA and the millions of doctors it represents now realize that the status quo system is broken. They understand the urgency of the problem, and they recognize that the pending bill is a major part of the solution.

The AMA's strong voice joins the chorus of Americans who want this Congress to pass a health care reform bill that includes a public option. Nearly three-quarters of all Americans want the option to participate in a government-administered health insurance plan that competes on a level playing field with private insurers. Popular support for the public option is not a partisan issue. Seventy-one percent of independent voters support the public option, and so do half of all Republican voters.

Americans want this bill. They want the public option, and they want us to act now.

Americans understand the critical role the public option plays in slowing skyrocketing health care costs. A government-administered plan can provide quality insurance at a low cost, leading by example to make the health care market more efficient.

Efficiency will save families money. If we fail to act, the cost of health care for the average family of four will rise by $1,800 annually for years to come. The public option is not just important for families. It's also key to putting our Nation's economy on the road to a full and sustainable recovery. If we don't contain health care costs, then our Nation's budget deficit will continue to spiral out of control.

Let us be very clear. The public option is not an attempt to drive private insurers out of business. Some State governments already offer their employees a choice between public and private health insurance, and private insurers have fared just fine.

A public option is critical to containing the health care costs that weigh so heavily on our Nation's families and on our Nation's economy. The public option does what a good private policy should do. It promotes primary care. It caps out-of-pocket spending so that a family medical crisis no longer means a family financial crisis. It establishes shared accountability between doctors, patients and the insurer. It institutes new payment structures to promote critical reforms. It will ensure that patients are able to get the medically effective treatments their doctors recommend. In short, it provides high-quality care at an affordable price.

Just like private plans, the public option will be financially self-sustaining, receiving no special government funding beyond a loan to get it off the ground. The public plan will be bound by exactly the same rules that regulate private insurers. In other words, the public plan will compete on a level playing field with private insurers.

Some powerful industries have spoken out against the public option. They prefer the status quo where decisions about treatment a patient receives are determined according to a company's bottom line rather than according to what a patient needs.

On the side of meaningful reform, the most important voice of all is calling for the inclusion of a public option. That loud chorus is the voice of the American people. Now is the time to listen to them. Now is the time for health reform with a strong public option.

DEMOCRAT CENSORSHIP OF GOP VIEWS OF HEALTH CARE REFORM

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from California (Mr. DANIEL E. LUNGREN) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DANIEL E. LUNGREN of California. Mr. Speaker, when I served in this House the first time around, the Cold War was still ongoing, and there was a term that often appeared in the press. It was called Samizdat, S-a-m-i-z-d-a-t. That word was used to describe communications which conveyed the opinions of people disfavored by an oppressive regime. It was the personally published commentary among peoples who felt they were oppressed in Communist countries. Why? Because their opinions were not allowed to be expressed in the official press.

Today, we have a situation in this House in which Mr. HERGER, Mr. LAMAR SMITH, Mr. LAMBORN, Mr. BONNER, Mr. WESTMORELAND, Mr. OLSON, Mr. SHUSTER, Mr. ROSKAM, Mr. MCCOTTER, Mr. GINGREY, Mr. FLEMING, Mr. BOUSTANY, Mr. CONAWAY, and Mr. PRICE thus far have been refused by the majority permission to express their points of view with respect to one of the most critical issues facing our country, that of reforming our health care system.

One of the most distinguished Members of this body, a member of the Ways and Means Committee, Congressman KEVIN BRADY from Texas, in working with the Republican economic staff of the Joint Economic Committee, came up with this chart, outlining what we believe to be the bureaucratic nightmare contained in the majority's proposal for health care.

Now, the majority disagrees with our interpretation of the facts, and that's part of politics. That's part of this body, but the majority has now said we will not allow you in the minority to use any official communications mechanisms to share your views of the impact of this legislation on your constituents.

Now, why does this seem strange?

Well, it just happens that, in 1993, we were faced with what later became known as HillaryCare, an attempt by the Clinton administration to take over health care by the Federal Government. At that time, Republicans also came up with a flowchart that showed the bureaucratic morass that would result from that proposal. I have with me a copy of the permission from the franking commission at that time that this be allowed. The only difference I can see between the two charts is that one is in black and white and that one is in color.

What has happened in the interim? Well, HillaryCare was defeated. The President said we can't stand to defeat his particular proposal, that they somehow have all of the answers.

Now, some people may say, "Well, what is it that the franking commission is supposed to do? What are your rules?" The rules have been established essentially to make sure that Members do not abuse the right of communication by turning their publications into campaign pieces, so we limit the number of pictures one can have there, the number of references that can be made to the Member, himself or herself.

To give you an example of what we on the Republican side have approved, I have a newsletter that has gone out by one of the Members on the Democratic side in which the claim was made that the stimulus package has helped create and save 3.5 million Americans jobs. I think that's absurd; I think that is a point of argument, but I don't believe that we ought to stop a Member of Congress from the Democratic side from making that assertion to his constituents.

I have another one with me that was approved in which a Democratic Member has claimed that 3.5 million jobs nationwide have been created—215,000 jobs in New York and 7,200 jobs in her particular district.

Then I have a copy of a letter that was approved last year from the Speaker, herself, in which she says that the New Direction Congress—that's how she defines it—also fought to increase compensation for our troops in the face of opposition from the Bush administration. It then goes on to criticize the President even though he signed it.

We disagree with the characterizations that were in Speaker PELOSI's letter, but we didn't think it was our purpose to censor her. Let's get rid of censorship and allow the American people to hear the facts as they are argued on both sides.

REVISIONS TO THE 302(a) ALLOCATIONS AND BUDGETARY AGGREGATES ESTABLISHED BY THE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION ON THE BUDGET FOR FISCAL YEAR 2010)

The Speaker pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. SPRATT. Madam Speaker, under sections 442(a) and (b) of S. Con. Res. 13, the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2010, I hereby submit a revised 302(a) allocation for the Committee on Appropriations for fiscal year 2010. Section 422(a) of S. Con. Res. 13 directs the chairman of the Committee on the Budget to adjust discretionary spending limits for certain program integrity initiatives if such an initiative is included in an appropriations bill. The bill H.R. 3293 (Making appropriations for the Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education, and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2010, and for other purposes) includes appropriations for certain such initiatives in accordance with S. Con. Res. 13. Section 422(b) of S. Con. Res. 13 permits the chairman of the Committee on the Budget to adjust discretionary spending limits for the Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program under specified conditions. H.R. 3293 meets the requirements of section 422(b) of S. Con. Res. 13. A table is attached.

This adjustment is filed for the purposes of section 302 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, as amended. For the purposes of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, as amended, this adjusted allocation is to be considered as an allocation included in the budget resolution, pursuant to section 427(b) of S. Con. Res. 13.

OUR FREE ENTERPRISE SYSTEM AND THE ROLE OF BIG GOVERNMENT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 6, 2009, the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. WAMP) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.

Mr. WAMP. Mr. Speaker, what we will see over the next 60 minutes is a conversation here on the floor of the United States House of Representatives about our economy, this issue of energy, and innovation; frankly, our free enterprise system in the future, the role of the government, and I think the problems with excessive spending.

But I want to open by talking a little bit about how I have vested my time and energies as a Member of the House over these last 15 years—because it's a privilege to serve my last term here in the House as I am a candidate for governor of the State of Tennessee now—but I will tell you, I am one on the Republican side that has been extraordinarily active on alternative energy. For 8 years, I chaired the Renewable Energy and Energy Efficiency Caucus here in the House with Congressman—now Senator—MARK UDALL of Colorado.

We built a caucus of over half the House, almost evenly divided between Democrats and Republicans, and advocated while Republicans were in the majority for unprecedented investments in renewable energy technologies. None of us got as far as we would like to have gotten, but we need to be realistic about how far we have gotten and what the capacity is for renewable sources today.

But in 2005, we wrote the Energy Policy Act. Some people didn't like it, others did, but without question it had more investments in the renewable and energy efficiency sectors than any bill that had ever been signed into law before, and I was proud to help write that very language in that bill. So I've got a long history on alternative energy and moving towards new sources.

But I voted against the recent cap-and-trade legislation because the differences today are not differences in goals or motives, because I think all Members of the House want the United States to move away, as much as possible, from fossil fuels or dirtier ways to create energy for our country's competitiveness. But the fact is, we have not developed these alternative sources yet to move as rapidly away as the leadership of the Congress now proposes if we're going to remain competitive. Their approach is much more a regulatory approach, and our approach is much more an innovation and technology approach.

A year and a half ago, I was in China, in Shanghai, where you couldn't see from one side of the Bund, the river, to the other. Extraordinarily bad pollution. So we broached the subject with the Chinese: Where are you on the environment? Basically, the answer you get from the Chinese is, you are entitled to your industrial revolution; we're entitled to ours.

Well, there's a big difference between when the United States had their industrial revolution and China having theirs now if there's no environmental regulation, because they're literally one-fifth of the world's population and climbing, and they are far and away the biggest polluters in the world. And if you think they're doing a cap-and-trade scheme to regulate their pollution or their air quality or their carbon emissions, you're kidding yourself. They're exactly the opposite.

And here we are seriously considering a scheme that will dramatically regulate our productivity and our competitiveness, raise the cost of energy, frankly raise taxes to pay for it and, at the worst time since the Great Depression, strangle our ability actually to pull out of this economic downturn. And that is the beauty of American innovation.

Not long ago, I was personally speaking with the prime minister of Australia, and he was telling me that he had great hope for the future because the U.S. had such innovation that we would lead the world out of this economic malaise. But I've got to tell you, we are now moving more towards big government regulation and the lack of innovation than at any time in modern history, instead of moving towards it.

Now, I think this is a challenge that we share in the House, but we have got to get back to a reasonable middle ground because American innovation is the only way to turn this economy around. Our entrepreneurship is the beautiful, what I call the goose, that lays the golden egg, the engine that creates the revenues to get back to a balanced budget. That's how the budget got balanced in the 1990s. We did slow the growth of spending below inflation and that was laudable, but it was new revenues in the information sector. People like Bill Gates. We actually led the world for so long on the information revolution that revenues surpassed expenses, and we balanced the budget.

We could do that again with energy. I call it the En-Tech agenda, where we would have a robust, U.S.-led manufacturing explosion in new energy solutions instead of this regulatory scheme that says we're going to actually limit the amount of energy that can be produced by certain sources and mandate a certain amount by other sources. And
